HEAVY ACTION ON 7TH ARMY FRONT

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)
PARIS, Jan. 18.—American and British troops, striking in the face of sustained Nazi counter-blows, hammered in the northern and central sectors of the German front in gains ranging up to more than two miles today and sent a powerful spearhead surging deep into enemy lines to the southeast.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Heavy battle action flared anew along the American Seventh Army front in northeastern France today, with the Germans fighting fiercely to hold the initiative in the Hagenu forest area.

The stiff clashes with reinforced German assault forces came as Yank armies to the north hacked more ground off the smashed Belgian-Luxembourg salient, sending one force down to within less than a mile of St. Vith, the enemy's last major base in Belgium.

German resistance in the Ardennes salient was stiff and stubborn as the Nazi Field Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt sought to extricate the major portion of his forces and return them east of St. Vith, four miles from the Reich frontier.

Nearing St. Vith
A dispatch from the front reported that an advanced spearhead of the First Army, driving southward had almost closed in on St. Vith. Headquarters said that gains elsewhere in the salient were small, although the liberation of several towns was announced in Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's regular communiqué.

PA NEWC Observes

Early sign of spring . . . ? a blue bird was seen in the north hill district this morning, Pa News was informed.

Heavily coated with ice, and rather treacherous for traffic, many of the downtown alleys have been washed by the street department as a safety factor.

Persons on the streets in the outer north hill section on Wednesday afternoon were rather surprised to see a horse drawn sleight touring the streets. North Mercer street, ploughed out, makes a fine route for sleighriders at the present time, Pa News is told.

Apparently there are still a considerable number of persons who are unaware that the bus stop at Falls street and Highland avenue has been discontinued. It might be a good idea to remove the signs that designate "Bus Stops Here."

Pa News is informed that some sections of Lawrence county provide rare winter scenes at the present time. Roads are cut through drifts that extend higher than top of the cars in some places.

Dread Hand Of Defeat Creeping In On Hitler As Reds Drive Ahead

(Editor's Note: Pierre J. Huss, famous war correspondent of International News Service and the last American newspaperman to interview Adolf Hitler on the eastern front in Europe, herewith presents a considered view of the present gigantic Russian offensive and the part it inevitably will play in coordination with a huge and decisive Allied drive in the west.)

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The fall of Warsaw and the sweeping Russian offensive up and down the eastern front are like a creeping paralysis to the Wehrmacht and Adolf Hitler, foreshadowing in mounting symptoms "the beginning of the end."

At the moment the Germans may sneer at Moscow commentators claims that the titanic Russian drives are intended "to end the war" but it can be taken for granted that the atmosphere at fuhrer headquarters in the woods of East Prussia is anything but cheerful.

Hand of Defeat Creeping Up
Grey-haired and bespectacled Adolf Hitler, staring at maps spread on that flat table by the generals of the high command, cannot escape the fact that the dread hand of defeat is creeping in on the Third Reich, gripping the land from east and west in nutcracker squeeze sooner or later sure to paralyze and choke the life in its body.

To jump to conclusions on our side that the current offensives of the Soviet armies will bring a quick end to the war in Europe would be rank folly. But it is reasonable to assume that as the Stalin troops sweep mile by mile across the snow-

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill called today for universal suffrage, with secrecy of the ballot and no intimidation, in all liberated countries of Europe.

His statement to the House of Commons, opening debate on Britain's policy regarding liberated nations, was answered by large cheers.

Churchill warmly defended the policy established by his government.

One Principle
"We have only one principle," he said, "government of the people, by the people and for the people, established on the basis of free and universal suffrage, with the secrecy of the ballot and no intimidation."

Churchill apologized to his audience for the delivery of his address, explaining that he was suffering from a cold.

The prime minister said that the Anglo-Russian agreement regarding a joint policy in the Balkans raised no question of divisions of territory or spheres of interest after the war.

He declared that both the British and Russians feel that an agreement on establishment of a re-

Churchill Praises Enormous Contributions To Victory By Both Nations

FEARFUL WARNING TO ENEMIES SEEN

By CHARLES A. SMITH
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Jan. 18.—In a speech that rang with praise for America's role in the ultimate defeat of Germany and Japan, Prime Minister Winston Churchill today disclaimed any desire for British imperialism in liberated Europe and stoutly defended his government's policy in Greece, Italy and Yugoslavia.

While the highlight of his lengthy war review was a call for universal suffrage, with secrecy of the ballot and no intimidation, in all nations of Europe freed from Nazi bondage, Churchill's long address bristled with forceful acknowledgment of the enormous contributions to victory being made by both the United States and Soviet Russia.

Principal Points

These were some of his principal points:

1.—Collapse of Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt's counter-offensive in Belgium was virtually an all-American affair, with United States casualties running 60 to 80 for every British one, and the battle, which may shorten the war, will go down in history as a great American triumph.

2.—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's "recovery of the Philippines" months before expected is a "fearful warning to the Japanese of their impending defeat and ruin."

3.—The present Soviet offensive which already has liberated War-

Only a few miles from Tarlac is Fort O'Donnell, which may no longer be a choice sentimental prize for Gen. Douglas MacArthur's army of liberation because the Japs marched American and Filipino prisoners past the fort on the infamous Bataan death march.

General MacArthur's latest communiqué did not reveal exactly how near the advancing Doughboys were to Tarlac but they were known to have pushed well beyond liberated Camiling and Moncada, important road junctions well within Tarlac province.

Continue Gains
Slow but continuous gain against enemy troops defending Rosario and entry of patrols into Pozorubio forced withdrawal of the stubbornly resisting Japs further back into the hills, foreshadowing early success of the drive launched shortly after the invasion of Luzon to eliminate a potential threat of counterattack on the Lingayen Gulf beachhead.

Envelopment of the enemy forces in this sector will also protect the rear of the spearheads headed through the central plains toward Manila while other patrols probe danger points where the Manila

Tomaszow Has Been Abandoned, German Asserts

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Col. Ernest von Hammer, military commentator for the Nazi DNB agency, announced today that German forces had abandoned the Polish town of Tomaszow, 24 miles southeast of Lodz.

The German announcement indicates that Russian forces pressing an offensive south of liberated Warsaw have increased their blows against the Germans to the north-east of liberated Czechochowa.

Report British Start New Drive

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—A Reuter correspondent on the western front reported today that the British second army had launched a new attack in the Sittard area of the eastern Netherlands, where a limited offensive was begun two days ago.

The dispatch said that the towns of Echt and Susteren had been captured.

According to a dispatch from the Philippine front, there is possibility that American armored forces may be able to sweep down the Luzon plain to Manila in a matter of weeks instead of months as first thought.

Some Army vanguards, striking out from our beachheads at Lingayen Gulf, were moving so fast they had to be slowed down to keep in touch with units behind them. Stiffer resistance will undoubtedly be met when the Japs, caught off balance by the initial landings, regroup their forces to the south. Meanwhile, to halt the northward flow of feverish enemy reinforcements, Yank planes have knocked out at least three of the main bridges above Manila. A black area shows U. Seek To Speed Legislation On Work Or Fight

House Committee Spurs Consideration Of Measure Sought By President

By WILLIAM THEIS
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The House Military Affairs committee, answering President Roosevelt's call for manpower legislation "without delay," went to work behind closed doors today to hammer out a modified labor draft bill covering men from 18 to 45.

President Roosevelt's endorsement of the "limited" national service measure—backed by a joint statement from the chiefs of Army and Navy—was expected to speed committee action on the controversial plan.

Predict Major Battle
But few House members believed the legislation will reach the floor for at least a week and predicted a major fight over its passage. Labor and industry are united against it.

German Border Defense Against Russians Will Be Key To War's Result

By CAPTAIN JOHN H. CRAIGIE
(Written Especially For International News Service)

First blood in the battle of giants on the eastern front, where besieged Nazi hordes strive to stand off assaulting legions of Marshal Joseph Stalin's Red Army, goes to the Russians with the capture of Warsaw and important advances achieved at half a dozen strategic spots.

In this titanic struggle are locked millions of men of the two most gigantic armies in the world, fighting one of the most significant decisive battles of all time. On its results will hinge, not only the length of the war with Germany, but the mastery of Europe for many years to come.

Soviets Gain Lead
The opening phase of the duel between the two huge antagonists, which began on Sunday with the Russian jump-off along a front stretching from the Baltic to the Carpathians, has developed all in the Soviets' favor. Troops of the First and Second White Russian armies under Marshal Gregory Zhukov and Konstantin Rokossovsky, respectively, put the squeeze on Warsaw from the north, while Marshal Ivan Konev's First Ukrainian army advanced a threatening pin-

Polish capital. According to Nazi propaganda broadcasts, the German high command saw the handwriting on the wall and withdrew, which may or may not be true.

Near Reich Frontiers
Thus far the Wehrmacht has sold space and territory for time. The Russian advance has been continuous, but it has taken two years. The Red Army has conquered a belt of territory 1,000 miles wide, but it has not been German territory. Its loss has not meant vital damage to the Nazi cause. But now the Germans have not much more foreign territory to evacuate in delay-

'On To Berlin' Is Russian Cry As Troops Advance

Mighty Mechanized Armies Of Soviet Surge Toward German Borders

REDS JUBILANT: SEE BIG VICTORY

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)
MOSCOW, Jan. 18.—A report that Russian troops already are thrusting into German Silesia on the heels of disorganized Nazi forces was received in Moscow today as Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin's "On to Berlin" offensive roared into high gear.

With Moscow newspapers unanimous in declaring that the fall of Warsaw seals the fate of Berlin, battlefront dispatches indicated that gigantic mechanized Russian armies were surging across Poland almost unchecked to the great Silesian coal and steel basins of the Nazi Reich—Mainspring of Adolf Hitler's war machine.

By NATALIA RENE

MOSCOW, Jan. 18.—Mighty mechanized armies of Russia surged westward today through Poland across the immediate approaches to the German border, shouting a victory cry of "On to Berlin!"

Soviet quarters declared jubilantly that the victory march to the Nazi capital was on.

Red army columns, officially reported within 15 miles or less of the Reich's Silesian frontier, strode across the last hurdles toward the heart of the Nazi homeland to follow up triumphant campaigns which resulted in the final liberation of Warsaw and capture of the key cities of Radom and Czechochowa.

Yanks Bore Entire Brunt Of German Offensive Drive

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—A frank admission that American troops suffered virtually all the losses in Nazi Field Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt's counter-offensive—with the British sustaining virtually none—was made by Prime Minister Winston Churchill today.

In the course of a war review to the house of commons, the prime minister said without equivocation that 60 to 80 American casualties were recorded for every British one in stemming the Nazi breakthrough.

The terrific battle that has raged on the western front since Dec. 16 "is not an Anglo-American struggle," Churchill said.

"In fact," he told the house, "United States troops have done almost all the fighting and have suffered almost all the losses."

"The Americans have lost 60 to 80 men for every one of ours."

"It is the greatest battle of the war and will be regarded as a very famous American victory."

Allied Unity Not Impaired Declares Grew

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Fears that Allied unity was imperiled by the security "pacts" signed recently by a number of the European powers were scouted today by Under-Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew.

To the contrary, he said, these bilateral agreements fit into the framework of the spirit of the Dumbarton Oaks conference for a lasting peace.

"We need not be disturbed," Grew said in a nation-wide broadcast, "by the anxiety expressed in some quarters that the various international pacts recently concluded among several European nations signify that our allies are falling out of step with us."

"Let me state here that after careful study of those agreements, we are satisfied that they were concluded in the spirit of what we all were trying to achieve through the Dumbarton Oaks proposals."

He warned against branding as "national selfishness" treaties which were motivated by "self-preservation and the legitimate desire of nations for future peace and security—both strategic and economic security."

ward territory of the Reich was reached when troops of the First Ukrainian army under command of Marshal Ivan Konev surged into Czesochowa, some 15 miles from the Silesian border southeast of Breslau.

An unconfirmed report appearing in the London Daily Express said that the Soviets were within 10 miles of the Silesian border. The location of the advanced Russian forces was not given.

(A broadcast by the German forces radio in Poland, according to the London Daily Sketch, admitted that Red army units were battling on the Silesian border area of Silesia.)

Report Lodz Reached
(Another dispatch to the Daily Sketch said that the Germans reported one Russian tank spearhead had reached the area of Lodz, 65 miles north of Czesochowa.)

If the forces of Marshal Konev can maintain the speed which attended the past few days of westward progress, observers believed that troops of the First Ukrainian army might cross the German border some time today.

Unconfirmed reports that the ancient Polish capital of Krakow also had fallen to the southern wing of Marshal Konev's army were not substantiated in official Russian announcements which said only that advanced spearheads were about eight miles northwest of the city. Last reports said that German defenses around Krakow were being battered by Soviet long-range artillery.

Liberate 2000 Towns
The powerful Soviet drives across a raging battlefield of more than 200 miles resulted also in the liberation of 2,000 other towns and villages.

The war shattered city of Warsaw, first capital to fall into the hands of Nazi militarists, finally was taken in a pincer drive which was launched some six months after the First Red army spearheads approached the capital.

North of Warsaw Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, commanding the Second White Russian army, pressed a new offensive in which forward units had pushed forward 25 miles beyond the Narew river across a 62-mile front.

Condition of many autos driven in the city in early morning indicates that there are many fresh air garages in use at the present time by owners of these cars. Following a night when snow has fallen a large number of cars driven are coated with heavy snow, indicating they were standing overnight.

any kind of "work or else" policy. While Rep. Andrew J. May (D-Ky., House Military chairman, declared the bill he introduced would be reported by tonight, other congressional leaders capably withheld comment. One Republican spokesman said there would be no "party fight" on the issue.

House and Senate members appeared to regard the issue of substituting compulsion for voluntary recruitment of war workers as one of "conscience" to be decided individually.

May's bill in its present form would draft into the Army men from 18 to 45 who leave essential jobs without good reason or who refuse to take war jobs at the "request" of their local draft boards. A majority of its committee indicated they would vote to substitute civil penalty of fine or imprisonment for that of Army induction.

President Urges Speed
Mr. Roosevelt wrote Chairman May that the "urgent need" of the legislation has increased rather than lessened since he recommended it in his state of the Union address on January 6.

"While this bill is not a complete national service law, it will go far to secure the effective employment of the effort of all registrants under the selection service law between the ages of 18 and 45," the President said.

"Prompt action now," he emphasized, "is much more important in the war effort than the perfecting of details."

"As the United Nations enter upon a truly total offensive against their enemies, it is vital that the total offense should not slacken because of any less than total utilization of our manpower on the home front."

One Republican on May's committee, Rep. Martin of Iowa, agreed with the President that the voluntary manpower system has "not produced the results we must have to win the war." Martin, who has closely questioned witnesses of the legislation, declared that the needs outlined by Gen. George C. Marshall and Admiral Ernest J. King "have got to be met."

Marshall, Army chief of staff, and King, chief of naval operations, told the President they feel the Nation must make "every conceivable effort to enable the armed forces to carry out" the Commander-in-Chief's "instructions."

The shipbuilding industry of the United States has constructed more new combat ships than the entire tonnage lost by the combined Allied Nations thus far in the war, says Ships Magazine.

European Politics

In reference to European politics, Churchill said:

"We have no political combination in Europe or elsewhere in respect of which we need Italy as a partner."

"We need Italy no more than we need Spain, because we have no designs which require the support of such power. We must take care that all the blame for things going wrong is not thrown on us."

Concerning the military picture in Italy, the prime minister predicted that the Germans will be driven out of Italy, or perhaps will withdraw, in a few months, and possibly sooner.

Regarding the size of British forces in action, the prime minister told parliament that British or British controlled divisions under Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander outnumber three-fold the troops of the United States. The comparison, he explained, would be greater if the whole Mediterranean area were included.

Regarding the battle along the whole front of Italy and behind the front in the hard-stricken peninsula there are many economic and political difficulties," Churchill said.

Churchill declared the British government has no designs on Italy, Yugoslavia, Greece or any other liberated country.

"We want nothing from Greece but her friendship, to earn that and deserve it we have to do our duty," he continued.

Stressing the need for British and American cooperation, Churchill said that results of any consultations and communications between Marshal Joseph Stalin and himself were always brought to the attention of President Roosevelt.

highway approaches mountainous terrain to ward off possible flank attacks.

17-Mile Gain

The Lingayen beachhead was further secured by a 17-mile gain of troops on the right flank which carried them from Alaminos to Bolinao, placing the entire northern end of Polinao peninsula, an arm of Lingayen Gulf, in American possession and clearing the way for a push to Dasol Bay, an important harbor.

The day-by-day advances in all sectors, plus complete domination of the air and sea and failure of major Japanese resistance to develop sent unofficial predictions concerning the probable date of the capture of Manila spiraling downward, pre-lauding estimates ranging up to 70 days gave way to guesses that the American flag will again fly over the Philippines capital between Lincoln and Washington's birthday.

Few Blocking Road

Reconnaissance reports indicate there are at present few enemy troops blocking the road to Manila. Patrols have encountered groups up to 50 and 60, but they withdrew southward without offering resistance.

Today's communique revealed that Gen. George C. Kenney's airmen have complete mastery of the skies by announcing another series of smashing air blows in support of the ground troops which drew opposition from only one Japanese fighter plane, which was shot down. Sixty-one enemy planes caught on the ground in raids by medium and attack bombers on Cagayan Valley airdromes and Clark Field were destroyed.

over striking power of the German army, the intensely fortified terrain of mountains and rivers, and finally the desperation spirit of a ruthlessly regimented eight million Germans who must fight to the last ditch or risk the traitor's sudden death.

It is a known fact that Hitler, and the German high command as well, politically and militarily rate the Russian threat to Germany as first and foremost. To the best of our knowledge, that viewpoint has never changed, on the grounds that the Allied attack in the west can be halted with comparatively normal defensive and offensive endeavor.

On that basis, at least 110 German divisions continue to face east, in addition to forty or more others kept for emergency purposes in Hungary and Czechoslovakia. Hardly more than half that number of Nazi divisions oppose the Allied armies in the west, despite which the German high command felt itself capable of conducting the counter-offensive of December 16.

Yet this calculation is apt to change very quickly when good weather in spring or summer enables Gen. Eisenhower to unleash the full striking power by land and air being assembled in the face of the current heavy odds. The forward sweep of the Russian armies in itself will bolster our position on the western front by rocking the Wehrmacht and brightening our prospects in many ways, so that at the decisive moment the two fronts can click like one in delivering the Sunday punch against Hitler.

ing retreats. Soon they will come to the frontiers of the Reich. Then they must stand and stop the Red Army advance or be destroyed themselves with their destruction bringing with it German collapse and doom. That is the significance of the forward progress of the present Red Army offensive.

Thing to watch from this point on is what happens when the Russian offensive reaches the German border. The Nazis are reported to have constructed massive fortifications in depth there, comparable to those of the Siegfried line. The line between Brauns and Bogen is the most important of all fronts, strategically. Bismarck once called this stretch Germany's Achilles heel. If the Red Army can keep its offensive rolling until it cracks this line and gets across the Oder river, there will be nothing to stop it short of Berlin.

EPWORTH GROUP SIX MEETS; HONORS BRIDE

After attending the meeting of Women's Society of Christian Service sessions conducted in Epworth Methodist church early Wednesday night, Group Six sponsored by Mrs. Thomas E. Crenney and Mrs. J. F. Rentz, the group motored to the latter's home on Winter avenue, where they were delightfully entertained at their regular meeting.

The occasion being their monthly get-together, also proved a medium of honoring Mrs. Crenney, a bride of recent date. She was presented with a lovely shower gift from her associates, during the social period.

Business was brief, Miss Virginia Morrison, president, in charge, with 22 answering roll call. It was planned by members to find some worthwhile home project to devote time too as an organization, as a part of their 1945 schedule.

Lunch was a later pleasure, the hostess being aided by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Richard E. Rentz.

Next meeting of Group Six will be held Wednesday, February 28, with Miss Evelyn Reno, Junior High street.

OFFICERS INSTALLED AT EPWORTH CHURCH

Impressively unfolded to members of the Women's Society of Christian Service when they assembled in Epworth Methodist church Wednesday night for their officers installation ceremony, was the purpose of their year's theme—"Behold! I set before thee an open door."

In total darkness except for the dim glow of a single light within the open doors of an improvised "little church" reflecting an open Bible, Mrs. J. E. Rodgers spoke eloquently a beautiful prayer telling the meaning of "keeping the doors open to all hearts, the importance of having faith and helping one another. Musical accompaniment was contributed by Mrs. Mabel Davis.

Surrounding the small altar were standards bearing lettered cards for each officer designating her specific duties. The presenting of these during the installation ceremony was another highlight, with Rev. George Braun, pastor, presiding. He also gave an inspiring address to the organization as they set out in launching their 1945 calendar. Installed were the following: president, Mrs. David McCreary; vice-president, Mrs. Harry McCurdy; corresponding secretary, Mrs. George Fisher, Jr.; recording secretary, Mrs. James Dunkerly; treasurer, Mrs. C. L. Sipe; secretary of church social relations and local church activities, Mrs. Maude Montgomery; secretary of missionary education, Mrs. Lloyd Thompson; secretary of student work, Mrs. J. E. Rodgers; secretary of youth work, Mrs. E. L. Young; secretary of children's work, Mrs. Frances Lucas; secretary of literature and publicity, Mrs. Elmer DeLancy; secretary of spiritual life, Mrs. Wayne Stitzinger; secretary of supplies, Mrs. Crawford Richards; chairman of membership committee, Grace Stitzinger; chairman of fellowship committee, Mrs. William Johns; status of women's committee, Mrs. C. P. Reynolds; printing and publishing, Mrs. William Bates.

Proceeding devotions were led by Mrs. J. P. Rentz with Mrs. Wayne Stitzinger and Mrs. Harry McCurdy assisting.

A selected hymn was sung by Russell Rhodes and his daughter, Mrs. William Bates, with Mrs. Mabel Davis accompanist.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. David McCreary, who has served successfully the past year and re-elected for 1945, in the capacity of president, and was largely responsible for last evening's inspiring program.

A special period of prayer in memory of the late Mrs. A. Cukerbaum and Mrs. Goldie Blau was offered by Mrs. S. Skole.

All joined in the singing of "America" at the opening of the program.

Indomitable Spirit

With most German scientists gone all-out on the trail of sudden death for Allied soldiers and civilians, any Nazi master-mind of the laboratory who hit on a new secret weapon that would snuff out the life of the British population would be in line for the highest honors the fuhrer might deign to bestow. The obsession of somehow multiplying deaths among the people of Britain continues to preoccupy the Nazi chemist, but despite all the havoc of horror warfare Britain is holding its own in the matter of survival.

The register-generals report for 1944 shows that in the cities of England and Wales there were 5,000 fewer deaths last year than in 1943, while births increased by 29,123. There were fewer cases of contagious diseases.

Even though such news seems enough to make German death specialists feel badly, it does not mean that the British people have been living charmed lives during the last year. Destruction of life and damage to property have been terrific, but four years of the nightmare of war have taught Britain much about warding off death.

Without the system of shelters and the program of evacuations, doubtless the casualty toll in Britain's cities would have been staggering. The strain of homefront war under such conditions must have made devastating inroads on the emotional strength of the British people. But even so the hand of frightfulness has been frustrated by the indomitable spirit of a great nation, bringing the best of its human tradition to its worst of human experience.

Chinese Optimism

A surprising feature of Admiral Halsey's protracted carrier assault on ports of the Asiatic mainland and on Japanese convoys off Indo-China was the security of Japanese aerial opposition. Ordinarily a fleet attacking enemy-held territory runs considerable risk of attack from land-based enemy planes.

Quite evidently the American carrier attack, the deepest penetration of the South China Sea to date, took the enemy by surprise. But even so he would undoubtedly put all the land-based planes available into the air to do what they could to break up the attack on such important bases, and on such an expedition as that en route to bolster Japanese forces in the Philippines. The fact that so few appeared is reasonably conclusive proof that no more were available.

American progress on Luzon and the apparent ability of American task forces to invade waters long under Japanese control with comparative impunity do nothing to dispel the impression that projected landings on the China coast are much nearer than they appeared to be as recently as last fall.

The various developments have even led the Chinese army newspaper to assert that the Americans would be ready to land on the China coast "in three months or so" and to urge the Chinese underground in the Japanese-occupied areas to prepare to give all possible assistance when the landings are made.

It would take a real optimist to go along with the Chinese army newspaper's prediction, but there is no denying that pressure which not even the most sanguine military prognosticator could have imagined two years ago now is being applied to the Japanese in what amounts to their own backyard.

But despite continuation of pressure such as that being exerted by Admiral Halsey's fleet, there is no reason to believe that invasion of the Asiatic mainland will precede final conquest of the Philippines. The Pacific campaign is on its way, but that way is still long and tough.

Postwar Bath Room

Among the diversions of the hour having to do with additions to household affairs after the war is over are details of an improved bathroom made public by Egmont Arens, its designer, who is an industrial engineer.

The room will be larger than those found in recently built homes—12 by 14 feet. In conformance to the wishes of women who like to make a bathroom also a dressing room, full length three-way mirrors will be placed in three closet doors, with a counter-to-ceiling mirror over the wash basin, with fluorescent no-shadow face illumination.

There will be a closet for storing a hair dryer and built-in-ash trays similar to those in automobiles. Also will appear a towel-drying closet with pull-out racks and a pull-out towel cupboard that may be reached from either side, conveniently placed at the foot of the tub, and shelves over the tub on which to park towels, powders and other bath accessories that at present seem to be always out of reach.

Size of the new bathroom will make possible installation of two wash basins and two showers to take care of the rush hour in the modern household.

Ben Franklin's Wisdom

This week, containing the anniversary of Benjamin Franklin's birth on January 17, 1706, was set aside as National Thrift Week.

When one thinks of Ben Franklin it is natural to think of economy, personal and public. Franklin's thrifty policies as a youth enabled him to become one of America's great statesmen and, in a sense, the father of American journalism.

His ideas on thrift may still serve as the foundation for individual success and as a basis for fiscal economy in government. He floated the United States' first war loan.

These are days when most Americans should be able to save, if ever. We have an unprecedented national income at a time when there is a minimum of consumer goods. Only wasters will strew their potential savings in entertainment and other channels for spending earnings over and above the cost of living.

If Ben Franklin were with us today, we believe he would urge his fellow Americans to invest "to the hilt" in War Savings bonds, to maintain a Christmas Savings account and to set aside funds by which to cope with a "rainy day."

Television

Radio experts predict that television will be in common use a few years after the end of hostilities, and thousands of operational theories have been advanced. One recently brought to public attention was born of experiments conducted by an assistant engineer of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

He declares that the use of coaxial cables will enable television broadcasting companies to be linked together the same way telephone circuits link network stations now. The engineer predicts that 7,000 miles of this cable will be laid. The cables will contain copper tubes, two of which can transmit 400 simultaneous telephone conversations or two television programs.

Natural Resources Hard Hit By War

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—There are many signs that America's natural resources are diminishing at an alarming rate in the course of this costly of all wars. Just the other day, an Oregon newspaper reported that a large lumber company which has been operating for half a century will shut down within less than two years because, according to company officials, there will be no more commercial timber to cut on the lower Columbia river.

This is a cloud a lot bigger than a man's hand. The Pacific Northwest has long been regarded as the heart of America's lumber industry, yet newspapers in Oregon and Washington are pointing out that new industries based on low-cost electric power may be needed to replace a declining timber economy.

Iron ore is being mined in America at a rate well over 100 million tons a year. Most of it comes from the fabulously rich Mesaba range in Minnesota. But is the Mesaba range so rich?

Some Gloomy Forecasts

According to a gloomy estimate made some time ago, the country's high-grade iron ore deposits will be able to support this volume only three years more. In one official calculation, an average of 16 years will see the end of all inferior iron deposits which are commercially available under present technological methods.

Likewise, experts take a pessimistic view of our copper reserves. Before the start of the war, it was said that the United States had reserves of copper sufficient for 40 years. Today's estimate is much closer to 10 years.

So long as the war lasts, of course, we must spend as prodigally as necessary. There can be no holding back.

But steps toward a long-range conservation program are essential, and they can be taken now. Under the pressure of war needs, many conservation practices have been relaxed. Selective logging, a program designed to leave seed trees and new growth in all cut-over forest areas, has not been followed in the face of army and navy demands for huge lumber deliveries. Some lumber companies have used the war as a convenient excuse to drop conservation practices which were costly to maintain.

Many Decades Needed

It takes many decades for a Douglas fir or a Ponderosa pine to grow to maturity. If we do not start reforestation and soil restoration on a large scale, the next generation of Americans may be without lumber resources.

We have thought of ourselves so long as a "have" nation that it is a distinct shock to realize we may find ourselves among the "have nots" unless we show a little common sense. If the depletion of our resources continues, the day may come when we will be forced to depend on oil imports from the middle east, on timber imports from Siberia, and on minerals from the mountain ranges of China.

However, the picture is not entirely black. On the one hand private industry is constantly developing new techniques to use new raw materials. Along with this goes long-range government planning to conserve natural resources. The Tennessee Valley Authority, with its program of soil restoration, is a good example of the kind of action that can be taken by the government.

Investigate Far North

The United States and Canada have recently organized the Arctic Institute of North America, which will investigate the possibilities for development of the far North. Perhaps in Alaska and Canada's Yukon territory rich new resources will be found.

On the Upper Columbia river, the great dam, Grand Coulee is almost completed. When I was in the Northwest last fall, I was told that this project would make possible a $200,000,000 yearly addition to the nation's agricultural income. Approximately 40,000 irrigated farms will be carved out of the wilderness, many of them available to returning soldiers.

The word "planning" has to some people a sinister sound. They should go back and read the papers of old John Quincy Adams. He had a plan for conserving the natural wealth of the country for the people. No one listened to the far-sighted Yankee. But it still is not too late for a little elementary planning to save something for our children's children.

WEARING JOB

When I was but a youngster small, I thought my grandpa very old. I thought he must be very old. And much afraid of weather cold. Then very old I wondered why. Upon my knees he sat and said, "But grandpa now, at last, am I And grandpa was I understand."

I used to wonder why he said: "Now, that's enough! I'll read no more."

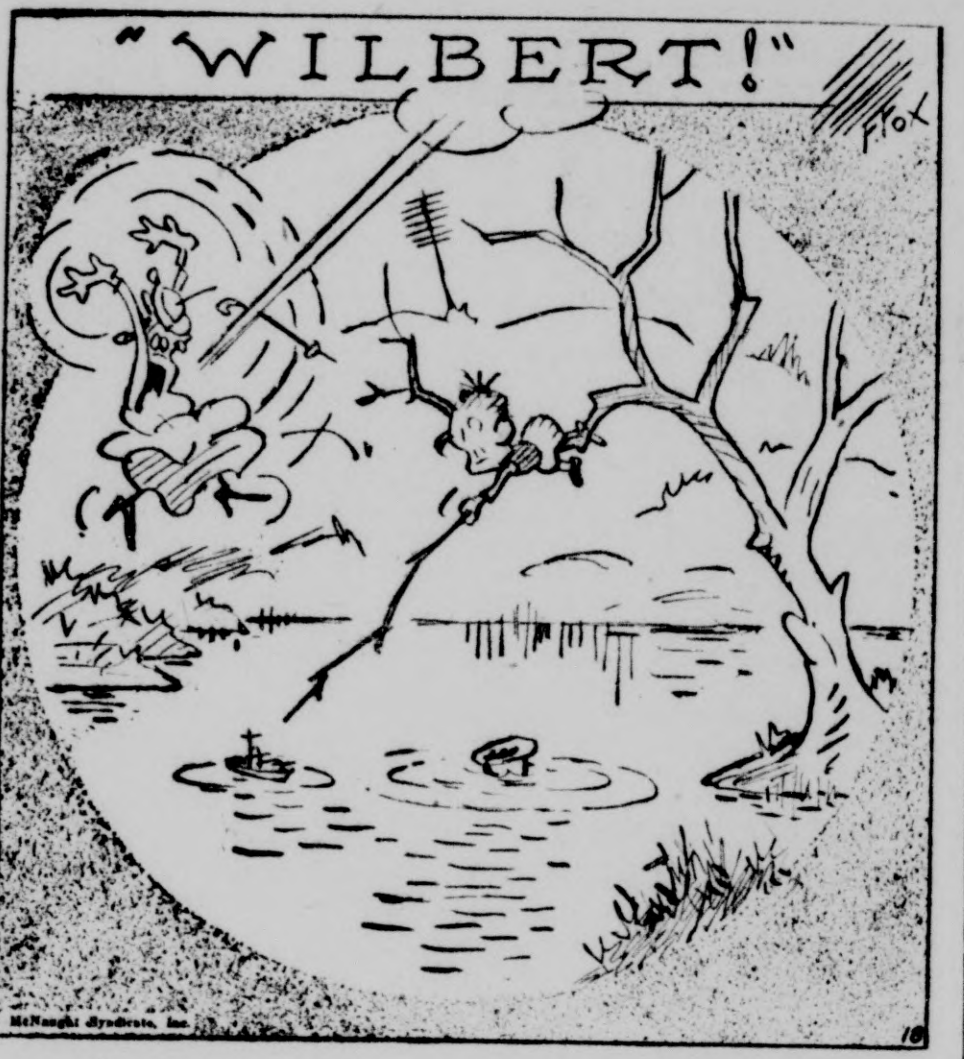

When three times three a tale he'd read And put me down upon the floor, And when I'd jump upon his front, And suddenly upon I land, In agony he said to me, "And that's a pain I understand."

I shake my head. "Not now, I say. Perhaps tomorrow I will go. And ride down hill upon your sleigh. Or make a funny man of snow. You run along and have your fun!" "How swiftly youth and age are spanned."

HINTS FOR TEEN-AGER

"Can you give me some pointers on appearance? I am 17 years old and feel that I need improvement. I wear sweaters and skirts, saddle oxford shoes, etc. for all purposes—school, dancing, parties. When do you think I will be old enough to wear 'dressy' clothes and high heels? Don't you think boys prefer 'casual' clothes?"—Mimi.

Answer: Sweaters and skirts, saddle oxfords and loafers are ideal and extremely popular for teen-agers. They are correct and girlish for wear to school and for all other practical purposes and "casual" occasions; but when you go to parties, dances, teas, wear "dressy" clothes and high heels.

Boys like girls who are appropriately dressed. The trend today is toward femininity in clothes. Long hair is still popular and very attractive. I think, on young girls.

All of the 17-year-olds I know wear glamorous black. Some, objecting to somberness, wear a touch of color or a bright colored crepe. Don't wear sweaters to any such dress-up occasion.

Another point: Don't swing the pendulum in the opposite direction and try to act sophisticated and glamorous. Dress attractively. Groom yourself well, but remain natural looking. There is nothing sillier than a young girl who tries to act like a woman of the world.

The next time you hear a man complain about our war strategy or how this country is run, ask him how he voted in the last election.

"Spending money like a drunk sailor" no longer expresses the ultimate. Let's say, "like an American."

Vandenberg's Speech Is Jar To Complacency

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—ONE EFFECT of the powerful foreign-policy speech of Senator Arthur Vandenberg has been to jar somewhat the complacency of the little inner group of advisers about the President, and, perhaps, to make Mr. Roosevelt, himself realize that the policy of omniscient silence which he has seemed disposed to adopt toward the people in these matters is not altogether wise.

How is it possible for a hotel to serve prime ribs of beef, tenderloin steak, chicken, turkeys and ham at nominal prices when my butcher and your butcher, too, has not a fowl of any kind and offers a shoulder of lamb, liver, or sausage as his meat choices?

Is this discrimination the fault of the OPA or is it that I am not clever at locating black markets?

Why is it suddenly the practice of top officials to warn the American public against hope for a quick ending of the war, while at the same time sponsoring reports of the destruction of enemy ships, planes and soldiers and failing to mention the loss of United States fighters or equipment?

How can this country awaken to the necessity for more production, more mobilization of manpower, if war censorship forbids say, "United States forces were driven back after an advance of three miles. The enemy losses were heavy?"

Or that report from the island of Formosa telling of the destruction or crippling of 35 more enemy ships—no mention is made of the crippling and destruction of the United States forces or of the killing or wounding of United States soldiers in the engagement?

In the face of such concealment can the public be aroused to the desperate need for more nurses to care for the injured?

How can war plant workers be made to feel it a duty not to desert their present jobs for a place in the momentary dimmed promise of the post-war world?

What originally was the purpose of Lend-Lease? How was its use limited? Has it become so elastic that it includes such non-essentials as for example the doing over of foreign embassies and legations in Washington?

A smart capital decorator told me yesterday that before Lend-Lease, getting a chair upholstered was a major undertaking for some legations. New draperies and rugs were the reason for long nagging and bargaining. Bills were often not paid.

FOR ANOTHER, BECAUSE SENATOR VANDENBERG HAS BEEN SO LUDICROUSLY PRACTICAL, MORE DEFINITE AND VERY MUCH MORE REALISTIC THAN ANYONE ELSE IN THE ADMINISTRATION IN DEALING WITH THE WHOLE BUSINESS OF POST-WAR COLLECTIVE SECURITY AND CURRENT STABILIZATION IN THE LIBERATED COUNTRIES.

Mr. Roosevelt has been forced now into a position of following instead of leading. For example, as able and fair a commentator as Mr. Walter Lippmann asserts that if "the President and his lieutenants will recognize promptly and firmly the importance of the speech it can, if it is understood and appreciated, break the vicious circle in which American foreign policy has been revolving so ineffectually."

Comment such as this has come from liberals as well as conservatives, from Republicans as well as Democrats, from pro New Dealers as well as anti New Dealers. And from the press it has been all but unanimous.

THUS IT would seem that on the eve of his departure for a vital conference with the Messrs. Churchill and Stalin, Mr. Roosevelt has had laid down for him by a Republican senator the lines upon which informed opinion in America wants him to proceed—and that he has no real choice save to proceed on these lines. He has no choice, it is pointed out, since the Vandenberg line are wholly consistent with both the spirit and the letter of the Dumbarton Oaks plan. The trouble is the Administration has not realized this before; or, if it has, has not seen fit to make it clear. Now that it has been made clear, there seems no excuse for further cloudy intention.

A FINAL thing which the Vandenberg speech has done is to make rather ridiculous some of the recent allegations against the Republicans. One is that the Republican party is still illegitimate. It would seem that the utterances of nearly every important Republican leader in the past year would be sufficient to refute that assertion without the Vandenberg speech. But the Vandenberg speech and its acceptance by Republicans generally, ought to put an end to that kind of attack.

At any rate, it is certainly time to come back to the House of Representatives and let the House Administration to prove this country's position on the world stage. The only effect of that is to cause the other side to take up Mr. Roosevelt's discreditable recommendation of the League of Nations in 1924 and again in 1932. Actually, the strongest and most effective isolationist in Congress today is a Democrat—Senator Wheeler of Montana, whose speech Monday stood him out as the isolation leader of the Senate.

IT WOULD also seem that Senator Vandenberg has done much to dispel the notion that there are no men of statesmanlike stature in the Republican party, that Republicans have neither initiative nor thought power and that all they are capable of doing is to sit around "bating Roosevelt."

This has been the business of Administration propaganda for a long time. It is the stock answer to every dissent from a Roosevelt act or attitude. All the "liberal" and "labor" leaders were upon that note. It does not fit the facts and, inasmuch as Mr. Roosevelt in his handling of our foreign policy needs the support of both parties and all the people, it would seem smart as well as decent to show another face.

INCOURAGE DONT DISCOURAGE

If reports from the national capital are true, some administration advisers are doing some serious and intelligent thinking about post-war taxes. To start with, we are confronted with the double problem of maintaining full employment and at the same time raising a huge national budget to meet interest on government borrowings and maintain the operations of the government following the war. That is, we must find ways to discourage production and consumption; taxes that are too low will until more borrowing.

A recent news article quotes the economic aids of the administration as considering three tax ideas: (1) To cut in half taxes in the lower income brackets; (2) to abolish the excess profits tax and levy a straight corporation tax of forty per cent; (3) to eliminate corporation taxes and revive the undistributed profits tax. The suggestions are said to be only tentative.

Two things, of course, are essential to bring the national income up to a point which will bring in adequate revenues in taxes. One is full production—which provides full employment—and the other is full consumption of what is produced. Excessive taxes on industry will discourage production by making investment unprofitable. Excessive taxes on wages will deprive wage earners of the spending power necessary to full consumption.

A fair adjustment of taxes is a difficult job, but by no means impossible if undertaken in a spirit of common sense. But it can never be achieved if tax legislation gets entangled in the hands of a few men, tangled with the demands of pressure groups.

Fat Hotel And Club Menus Puzzle To Reporter Seeks Answer When Housewife Can Get Little Do Foreign Embassies Splurge On Lend-Lease?

MEETS ON THE MENU

There were all sorts of exotic things listed on the menu, but it was late and everything was gone. The guests complained bitterly—imagine no Crepe Suzette, no Peach Melba, no Baked Apples.

Raymond was called. In a few moments the ire of the guests had changed to laughter. A few jokes, an exaggerated expression of his sorrow—and everyone of the important patrons was served a piece of apple pie at 40 cents a portion and liked it.

I had a little chat with Raymond. "Why do the people here like you so much?" I asked him.

Well, I guess it's because I like them, he said. "And may be also because I love my work. You see I know that when people come here they spend a lot of money and they feel important and want to make an impression."

"So I treat them like very important people and I help them make an impression on their guests. They go away pleased, even if I can only give them apple pie."

If I happened to know that Raymond has quite a lot of money, he owns property and a lovely home, I am almost sure he could retire and make it easy.

But I also know that as long as he can get around hell keep on looking after the spoiled grown-ups and see to it that they are made to feel as important as they are, trying to make others think they are.

Which, for no particular reason, makes me think of a woman who used to come to our house to do the heavy cleaning.

She told my wife that she was crazy about the work.

My wife asked her why.

"Don't you think it's nice to take something that's dirty and make it all nice and clean?" she replied.

I kind of envy Raymond and our cleaning woman. Don't you?

CHOICE OF WORDS

Frequently we use "ought" or "should" when we very well know that nothing will come of it. We really don't expect anything to happen. We have saved our consciences and expressed superiority, finding satisfaction in the saying of it. I remember having once been asked, on the third offense, that I sold my eldest son, then about fourteen, on three successive evenings, when we were sitting down to dinner. "You ought to have your hair cut," always then he looked annoyed. Surely I felt vexed. As I repeated I said it in a kind of mournful, whining fashion, and I said it when the barber boy was closed!

No Disobedience

Your daughter Aimee, ten years old, comes home from Sunday school. "You should change your dress," you say to her. But she does not feel the necessary urge to do so; she is annoyed and so are you, after you discover that the dress that you had hoped she might wear again next Sunday, has been soiled. Then you whine in disapproving tones, "If you had done what I told you, this would not have happened." But you had not commanded.

Navy Firepower Shows Increase Of 500 Per Cent

Tripling Of Tonnage Plus Modernization Steps Up Firepower Five Times Over

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The navy department reported today that the tripling of the navy's combatant tonnage since July, 1940, has been accompanied by a five-fold increase in the overall fire power of the fleet.

In a release disclosing for the first time details of the armament of the navy's most modern vessels, the department said the entire fleet of combatant ships, auxiliaries and coast guard vessels can now fire nearly 2,000 tons of shells in a 15 second firing run under normal conditions.

The increase was attributed in part to the step-up in fire power of modern fighting ships as compared with pre-Pearl Harbor versions.

92 Per Cent Greater

For example, the navy said, a ship like the U. S. S. Iowa, latest of the battleships, carries fire power 92 per cent greater than the U. S. S. Texas, which was commissioned in 1914.

The Iowa is armed with nine 16-inch guns in three, 20-five inch double purpose guns in twin-mounts, and many smaller anti-aircraft guns, while the Texas has ten 14-inch, 45-caliber guns, 16-five inch, 51-caliber guns, and 12 three inch, 50 caliber anti-aircraft guns.

The Iowa can fire more than 15 tons of shells in a 15-second firing run. The ship's surface fire is nearly 50 per cent greater than that of the Texas. Its double purpose guns can fire five times as much and its automatic weapons 63 times as much.

Carry More Guns

Heavy cruisers like the Baltimore, commissioned in 1943, carry nine 8-inch guns in three, 12 five inch anti-aircraft guns in two, and many smaller weapons, giving it 123 per cent more fire power than the Pensacola class, commissioned in 1930 with 10 eight inch 55 and eight five inch anti-aircraft guns.

In the light cruiser class, the Denver, commissioned in 1942, has a fire power 110 per cent greater than that of the Omaha before her modernization.

Destroyers top all other classes in increased fire power. The 2,200-ton Sumner class is 216 per cent greater in fire power than the 1918 Farragut class. The Sumner depends for her effectiveness on double purpose guns of the fire-in type and many smaller anti-aircraft weapons.

Report Wallace Will Likely Be In New Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Friends of Vice-President Henry A. Wallace claimed today that he will be appointed Secretary of Commerce in the new fourth term cabinet.

The same sources reported that Secretary of Commerce Jesse H. Jones will be reconstituted Federal Loan Administrator, and vast loan supervision agencies now under the commerce department would be taken from Wallace.

The effect of the switch, it was said, would be that Jones would drop out of the cabinet but as federal loan administrator he still would be one of the most powerful figures in government finance.

Wallace, as secretary of commerce, would have wide jurisdiction over studies of means to aid business. Having displayed a keen interest in development of small business, he would be in a position to intensify studies to aid its development in the postwar era.

A common inhalant to cause an allergic condition is house dust.

until a year or two after the work was done.

But now, says my decorator friend, since Lend-Lease has fattened purses, an embassy will contract for a 10 or 15 thousand dollar job without questioning the price. More amazing still, the bill, therefore, will be paid as soon as the furnishings are delivered.

I would feel happier about such careless affluence if you, too, were not haunted by the increasing size of our income tax. Besides I would like a few new draperies and a chair here and there in my own house. But you and I must economize. Part of the tax on our incomes goes to the support of Lend-Lease. Just exactly how much does go to the support of Lend-Lease?

I have another question I'd like to ask. The answer will require a full page... Why are public officials and war leaders so painfully concerned about publicity? Why are they so sensitive to a hint that they are not combinations of Apollo, Alexander the Great, Plato and King Solomon?

Surely if these gentlemen are doing sincere, useful jobs they need not fear "publicity". If the military leaders win battles—they win battles. They stand or fall on their own achievements.

They don't have to look to the columns of the newspapers to find out if they are worth public trust. I have been thick in the spread of "publicity" for a long time. I am convinced it is an overrated commodity.

Edith L. Sherbine •Writes From India

Foreign Economic Administration Assistant Tells About Life In New Delhi

From Miss Edith L. Sherbine who arrived in India on November 23 as chief assistant to the Far East Enemy Foreign Economic Administration her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lloyd Sherbine, of 922 Maryland avenue, have received several unusually interesting letters telling in detail about her experiences since she arrived in India.

Miss Sherbine is located at New Delhi, India, where she has taken up residence at the Eastern Hostel. "There is a constant whirl here," she writes and tells of the many people she has met and acquaintances renewed with friends from Washington, D.C., where she was located before going overseas.

One such "it's a small world after all" was a young lieutenant who had recently come from Camp Reynolds and assured her that he had been to New Castle a thousand times when he learned that her home was here.

On a plane flight from Calcutta back to New Delhi at Christmas time, the pilot obligingly detoured from the regular route to give her a glimpse of the snow-capped Himalayas.

Mail from home comes in two weeks time, she says.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

manded her to change the dress; you merely said, "You should." There was no disabediment. There was no change her dress, don't tell her that she should. Avoid "should" as you would avoid the most blasphemous profanity; merely tell her to change her dress, and see to it that she does. Let there be no argument.

Forgo "ought!" In "The Modern Parent" I have written: "When we parents find our children failing to live up to standards which we hold before them, we are worried. Then it is we are tempted to scold, to nag, to sermonize. We overwork the "ought." We may bound our children with the word. We try to make them feel they "ought" to be in off the street earlier, "ought" to go to bed earlier, "ought" to spend more time on their lessons, "ought" to bring home better grades.

The more we press the "ought," the less likely is the child to measure up to standard. "Ought" to the child usually means, "I want you to" or "Unless you do, you worry me."

Good Results

If, however, we can lead a child to feel that he ought to do as he should do, we shall have accomplished something. If we tell him to do hard things and make sacrifices just for our own satisfaction, we can scarcely count on good results. He must himself want to do right and enjoy doing it. We get best results as we shift responsibility from ourselves to our children for the consequences of their own acts.

At the end of my book, I wrote a prayer for parents. A reprint of it may be had for postage in a self-addressed stamped envelope sent to me at 235 East 45th street, New York City.

A fair question! Yes, we know that you had to wait for your coal. For this inconvenience we are sorry—we did our best to meet the demands placed upon us by a community that was snowbound. Look back over the days from December 11 to January 11, (the days of the big snow), then breakdowns, sickness and absenteeism. The result was that we were unable to meet the demands placed on us.

Shumaker Named Guild President

Directors Hold Annual Meeting Of Metropolitan Concert Guild

Wednesday

Attorney Alvah M. Shumaker was elected president of the Metropolitan Concert Guild Wednesday night when the annual meeting of the directors of the organization was held at a dinner in the Castleton hotel. With him were elected the following officers: First vice president, David W. Rees; second vice president, Mrs. Lyle Hughes; secretary, Mrs. Harold Leach; financial secretary, William A. Carr; treasurer, Charles H. Johnson, Jr.

The past year's work was discussed and reports of various committees heard. The retiring president, David W. Rees, announced that the date for the performance of the Gypsy Baron had again been set for February 22 after having been changed from that date to the 21st. The opera will be presented by the New York Opera Company.

A substitute concert for that which was to have been presented by Josef Leveque was discussed but no definite action taken. A concert of equal merit or better will be presented with the possibilities that one of the outstanding string ensembles may be selected.

The present year is the most successful the Guild has ever enjoyed and it is hoped that the next season will be as good. A committee consisting of Mrs. Elizabeth Fleming, L. J. Lewis and Mrs. Alex Crawford Hoyt was appointed to set a price schedule for the coming year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Minnetti, Mrs. Mary Minnetti and family of Pittsburgh spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Minnetti. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Scaduto and family of Scotland Lane spent Sunday at the home on Mr. and Mrs. Louis Minnetti.

For Joyful Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

Real Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This splendid recipe is used by millions every year, because it makes such a dependable, effective medicine for coughs due to colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any drugstore get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of very effective and quick-acting cough medicine, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never poils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving you delightful relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

Continuance Of Trial In 40 Year Old Case Sought

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Jan. 18.—(INS)—Attorneys for the state and for the defense today were scheduled to appear before Judge Charles E. Miller to ask for a continuance of the trial of Benjamin Male, 73, accused of the death of Walter O. Smith, crippled school teacher, 40 years ago.

State appointed defense attorneys indicated they would need more time to get depositions from Oregon, where Male was following the crime and lived under an assumed name. Following a routine medical examination Mario county physician, Dr. Dell N. Yost, reported that Male was suffering from a "severe case of jaundice," but that otherwise the elderly self-styled killer "appears to be better than normal for a man of his age."

Dr. Yost said that although he did not discuss the case with Male during the examination, Male "went some" during the visit. He attributed this to strain under which the elderly man has been placed. Dr. Yost said Male "had the shakes pretty bad."

The trial date was set for next Monday when Male first voluntarily returned to Fairmont to face the charge which has been pending against him for four decades. Prosecutor Harrison Conaway has indicated he has located three eyewitnesses to the crime, but has refused to identify them pending opening of the trial.

Fighter Planes Now Using Base On Luzon Island

By LEE VAN ATTA
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

WITH MACARTHUR'S FORCES ON LUZON, Jan. 16.—(Develed)—Exactly one week after Gen. MacArthur's forces landed at Lingayen, American fighter planes returned to Luzon.

Slick, silver Lightnings roared overhead at 1:15 p. m. today, marking completion of the first new York airdrome on this key Philippine island, and eased down for perfect landings on a steel-matted, well protected strip.

Immediately after them came supply laden Douglas transports, hauling in the first airborne freight to reach Luzon since the days when the famed single engine Beachcraft "biscuit bombers" chugged their way back and forth from Mindanao to Batang feeding beleaguered Americans three years ago.

Col. William Morgan, San Antonio, Tex., and Capt. Gladson Turnbull, Oklahoma City, were the first "pea-shooter" pilots to glide in for Lingayen landings.

The heavily loaded transports rang up a new record today under Lt. William Turnock, Colorado Springs, Colo. When two score planes discharged their big cargoes of freight in exactly 16 minutes and immediately cleared Lingayen for Mindor under protective screen of Yank fighters.

Services May Get Paroled Prisoners

Michigan Will Release 1,200 Prisoners For Army Service, Due To Shortage

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 16.—(INS)—Approximately 1,200 Michigan prisoners will be paroled to enter the armed services, it was announced today in Lansing, Mich., headquarters of the state parole board.

Col. George Hafer, general counsel for the national selective service board, has been in Michigan the past week making a survey of prisoners. At his request, the state parole department today began a review of its records to segregate men physically fit to go to war.

The plan, which provides special clemency in certain cases, is unprecedented. Sentences will be shortened as much as a year for eligible young prisoners with good records, according to Commissioner John H. Eliason of the parole board.

Eliason explained that sentencing judges must agree to grant clemency. The commissioner was confident, however, that such permission would be given in view of the manpower shortage.

The proposal was endorsed by Warden Harry Jackson of Jackson prison who said: "Former convicts were barred from the services in the early days of the draft. Later, selective service began taking first, second and even third timers after they had been released."

Farm Youths Lose In Court Move On Induction

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Six youths, employed on farms in the rural sections of the Philadelphia area, headed for service with the armed forces today, after losing appeals from their induction orders in U. S. District court.

The sextet had protested a government order canceling deferment for farm employees between the ages of 18 and 26. They charged that their draft board was "arbitrary and capricious" in reclassifying them, and asserted that their duties as farmhands contributed to the war effort.

Judge William H. Kirkpatrick ruled that the boys had failed to prove their contentions, and said that the Tidyings amendment—intended to exempt essential farmworkers from the draft—"was not intended to change administrative rulings of draft boards" in selecting candidates for induction.

The youths are Walter Sniekowski, 19; Eleuterio J. Spinelli, 22; Charles R. Shepherd, 19; John L. Scavillo, 19, and Nicholas J. Russo, 19, all of whom already have been inducted, and Matthias A. Haist, who was ordered to report for induction today.

Two other youths who also had entered into the appeal, were injured in an automobile accident yesterday, and did not appear at the hearing.

NESHANNOK FIREMEN HAVE $1,000 IN BONDS

Neshannock township volunteer firemen held their regular monthly meeting in the Fairview school on Tuesday night, January 16, with President Edward Miller presiding. Auditors of the organization made known that $1,000 has been invested in U. S. war bonds, in addition to having a reserve cash fund.

Newly elected officers officially took up their duties at this time. A social period brought the evening's program to a close with the committee in charge serving refreshments.

Neighborhood House Report

Report For December Shows Many Contributions Of Treats At Christmas Season

Americanization society held its monthly meeting at the Y. W. C. A. when the report of the Neighborhood House for December was given by Miss Christine Butler, worker. Miss Margaret Lowry presided.

Fifty calls were made from neighborhood House during December and classes met regularly throughout the month with each having a special Christmas program.

Mrs. Fred L. Rentz sponsored a party for the sewing class for 40 girls and boys. Refreshments of cookies, candy, and klondykes were served by girls at the Friday class. As prizes for perfect attendance nine members received necklaces from Miss Sarah Snyder. Mrs. Rentz also sponsored a party for the Boys club of the Sabbath school.

Scotland W. C. T. U., as has been an annual custom, took care of the Christmas party for the Loyal Temperance Legion at the close of a program by members of the legion. Eighteen who had been present each week were given prizes.

Evangelism classes and the Bible Study class enjoyed an evening of Christmas songs and carols presented by the junior choir of St. John's Lutheran church under the direction of Rev. A. E. Simon. Cakes and klondykes were served by Miss Annabel Emery and Miss Mary Riffer. The latter gave each boy and girl a Christmas card.

Children of the Cradle Roll were remembered with gifts from the Reading Circle and Miss Sarah Snyder.

All classes of the Sabbath school took part in a program of Carols, music and readings. Each pupil received candy and an apple.

Boys of the Neighborhood House continue to enjoy Saturday afternoons at the Y. M. C. A.

Three New Testaments were given out.

In addition to those mentioned above who contributed to the celebration of Christmas at Neighborhood House there were also Miss Hannah Walker and Mrs. Cleo Tintman.

WOMAN SUSTAINS ANKLE FRACTURE

Mrs. Ruth Spieler, of North Mercer street, was treated at the Jameson Memorial hospital, late Wednesday morning, for a fracture of the tibia bone at the ankle, which was sustained in a fall in Youngstown, the evening before. A boot was applied to the ankle and she was able to be taken to her home.

A woman who serves as an RFD letter carrier in Oregon has an arrangement by which she honks her auto horn twice at the post box if she is leaving a letter from a serviceman. Otherwise the horn remains silent.

Bob Hope Given Another Award

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The Poor Richard Club's 1945 medal of achievement went today to genial Bob Hope, radio and screen star, in recognition of his outstanding wartime contribution to the morale of servicemen along the "Foxhole" circuit.

Climaxing a day-long program commemorating the 239th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin, presentation of the coveted award was made by Graham Patterson, president of the nationally-famed group of advertising men. Last year's winner was Gen. H. H. Arnold, of the Army Air Forces.

INJURED IN AUTO CRASH Mrs. Betty Marberger, Hazel avenue, Ellwood City, sustained a knee injury last night when a car driven by her husband, Merle, figured in an accident with a car driven by William S. Slater, South Walnut street, this city. The accident occurred four miles south of this city on the New Castle-Ellwood City road. Slater was turning his car into a driveway when the accident occurred.

Nearly 300 Bills Are Introduced Into Assembly

HARRISBURG, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Action on 297 bills in legislative committees was deferred today until the general assembly reconvenes January 22. One hundred and seventy-four measures were introduced in the house and 123 in the senate.

New proposals would: Amend the state employees' retirement act to enforce bi-annual physical examinations for recipients of disability pay; require annual medical and dental examinations of students and teachers in all Pennsylvania schools; appropriate $87,000,000 for public assistance during the next biennium; and appropriate $750,000 to enable the commerce department to advertise post war travel facilities and advantages of Pennsylvania.

RAILROADER HURT

Clarence Martin, of 414 Electric street, an employee of the B. and O. railroad, was treated at the Jameson Memorial hospital for injuries to the fingers of his left hand, late Tuesday morning. A possible fracture of several bones was indicated.

Pfc. Daniel Cole Given Purple Heart

Pfc. Daniel Cole, who was wounded in the leg by a German sniper near Metz on November 3, has been awarded the Purple Heart and has sent it home to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Cole, 110 East Long avenue.

Pfc. Cole has left the hospital and is now at a replacement center in England where the men not only receive the best care but are given a chance to learn a trade.

Skipper Relates Story Of Typhoon

Would Rather Attach Jap Battleship Than Live Through Typhoon Tragedy Again

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Wind accompanying the Pacific typhoon which sank three U. S. destroyers was so strong it ripped metal covers off ammunition boxes and threatened to tear off the ships' smokestacks, the skipper of one of the vessels revealed today.

Lieut. Comdr. James A. Marks, commander of the destroyer Hull which went down in the storm, in a "blow-by-blow" account of the tragedy told a news conference the typhoon came up so suddenly the ships didn't know what hit them.

Jap Attack Easier

"I'd rather make a torpedo attack on a Japanese battleship than go through that typhoon again," Marks declared.

"There was rough weather the day before," he recounted, "but no concrete evidence of a typhoon, and the fleet was carrying out scheduled maneuvers."

"The night was rough and rainy and by 10 the next morning it began to look like a typhoon, but it struck so suddenly it more or less trapped everyone in its path."

The gale was running at about 110 knots at the height of the storm; the air was filled with spray and spume and visibility was extremely low. The number of ships in the area made maneuvering a serious problem, he declared.

Punishment Terrific

The ship was taking a "terrific punishment" from the wind, which was so strong it ripped off the metal covers of ammunition boxes and threatened to tear off the smokestacks," Marks continued.

"Shortly after noon, the ship was lying on its side at an 80-degree angle, heavy seas were entering the boiler intakes and finally came into the pilot house," Marks narrated.

"I told the men to cling to the ship as long as possible because I didn't think anyone could live in that sea, nor did I think a life raft could weather it."

Shook Hands All Around Marks was on the bridge when the ship began sinking, he said. "We shook hands all around and stepped off into the water," he recalled.

The skipper was in the water for 20 hours. He told how the waves ripped so violently at him that he thought his clothes would be torn off. About 90 per cent of the crew got clear of the ship as it went down, and those finally rescued were scattered over an area of about 20 to 25 miles by the violence of the waves.

That night, although Marks said he did not expect rescue for several days because they had been blown off course by the typhoon, a destroyer escort on its way to join the fleet spotted one of the men in the water, picked him up and commenced an intensive search when he told his story.

Marks saw the ship two or three miles away that night but they couldn't see him and he was not picked up until the next morning when he paddled over to the destroyer escort.

Salvation Army Station Wagon Fund Growing

The campaign fund for purchasing a station wagon for the Salvation Army of this city continues to grow, with each day bringing in additional checks, it is announced.

Checks from the Mabel Wilson lodge for $25, Martha Washington No. 24 lodge for $15 and "a friend" for the sum of $100 have been added to the totals.

Other groups or personal checks given toward this urgent and worthy cause are to be mailed to Roy V. Shaffer of the First National bank. Also anyone desiring to contribute any sum whatsoever no matter how large or how small, is asked to forward it at once.

Eagles Auxiliary, conducting the campaign, announces that many organizations and persons have been contacted by telephone, with letters to be in the mail this week to others, prompting their aid.

Musterole gives such prompt relief because it's more than just a "salve." It's what so many Doctors and Nurses call a modern counter-irritant. Musterole not only relieves coughs, sore throats, aching muscles due to chest colds but ALSO helps break up congestion in upper bronchial tract, nose and throat.

Musterole is wonderful for grow-ups, too! And so much easier to apply than a mustard plaster. Ready for instant use—just rub it on! "No fuss! No muss, with Musterole."

Last summer America experienced the second worst epidemic of infantile paralysis in its history.

The disease attacked weak and strong alike, invading the richest and poorest homes in the nation.

Your dimes and dollars, supporting The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, made it possible to render expert care and treatment to all polio victims, regardless of age, race, creed or color.

Many of these thousands of new victims will need care for months, years, some perhaps for a lifetime.

Next summer America must be prepared to meet whatever epidemic emergencies may arise.

Support the Fund-Raising Appeal in your locality and send your dimes and dollars to President Roosevelt at The White House.

HIGHWAY CREWS PRAISED
HARRISBURG, Jan. 18.—(INS)—State highway department maintenance crews were cited today by Secretary John U. Shroyer for "meritorious service" in clearing roads during the recent "unprecedented snowfall" and promised pay bonuses for their work.

Shroyer said he conferred with the Senate Highways committee on rewards for "members of the permanent organization." He added the bonuses "will vary as to the amount of service put in by the men."

LIQUOR BOARD UPHOLD

In an opinion handed down Wednesday, Judge W. Walter Braham upholds the decision of the State Liquor Control Board revoking the license of L. Marshall, operating the Manhattan Cafe at the corner of Moravia street and Long avenue.

The cafe was given twenty day suspension in 1943 for violation of the liquor laws. On August 16, 1944, agents of the board testified to sale to intoxicated persons, lewd conduct and other violations. The board then revoked the license.

Mr. Marshall appealed from the decision of the board and testimony was taken. After hearing the testimony Judge Braham refused the appeal, and placed the costs upon the appellant.

ARGUMENT CASE

Arguments were heard Wednesday morning by Judge W. Walter Braham in the matter of distributing some $50,394.86 rentals held by the county commissioners and which will eventually go to the various political sub-divisions of the county.

The City of New Castle and the New Castle School District do not agree with the plan advanced by the county solicitor and have asked the court to order a distribution of the moneys. Whatever the outcome of the arguments it will probably result in distribution of the funds within a reasonable time.

County Commissioners, Earl R. Winner and Joseph P. Travers were in Harrisburg Wednesday attending a conference of the Civilian Defense officials.

Three Servicemen Put Off Plane But Big Dog Stays On

Nationwide Interest Aroused In Story Told By Sailor In California About Trip

ANTIOCH, Cal., Jan. 18.—(INS)—The story of Seaman First Class Leon Leroy of Antioch that he and two other servicemen were forced to give up their seats in an army cargo plane while a dog reportedly consigned to Mrs. Faye Emerson Roosevelt, wife of the president's son, Elliott, remained aboard, aroused nationwide interest today.

The 18-year-old navy gunner had no further comment to make. His mother, Mrs. Fay Leroy, said her son was not annoyed at having been forced to leave the army plane at Memphis, Tenn., with a naval Seabee and an army sergeant, and was unhappy over the furore his story created.

"This sort of frightens us," she said. "Do you think it will affect his standing with the navy?"

A war department press spokesman in Washington confirmed young Leroy's story in its essential details but failed to identify the dog as one received recently by President Roosevelt's daughter-in-law in Hollywood.

Dog Shipped From England

Miss Emerson, who is en route to Washington for the president's inauguration, was interviewed at Albuquerque and said her husband had shipped her a 130-pound Mastiff named "Blaze" from England, but added that she did not believe the dog had an "A" travel priority as Leroy charged.

Leroy first related the story to friends as a humorous anecdote. He arrived in Brooklyn aboard his ship January 5 and learned for the first time that his father, former Antioch police chief, Al Leroy, died December 6. He was given emergency leave and after receiving a "C" travel priority boarded an army plane at Newark, N. J.

At Dayton, O., Leroy said, the plane landed and a large box containing "a huge dog" was placed aboard and the plane resumed its flight.

Then when the plane reached Memphis, January 11, according to Leroy, priority cargo was waiting to be loaded and he and the two other servicemen were required to give up their seats.

"We protested," Leroy said, "and the army lieutenant in charge, showed us that the dog had an 'A' priority. The dog's crate was so big it took up three seats."

An instruction slip accompanying the crate, Leroy said, contained the information that the dog was the property of Col. Elliott Roosevelt and was consigned to his wife in Hollywood.

Naval Annex Fire At Norfolk Does Serious Damage

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 18.—(INS)—

The annex of the Norfolk Navy yard was a scene of heavy damage today following a fire in which 90 civilian and Navy firefighters were overcome by smoke and eight persons were hospitalized with minor injuries.

The blaze, origin of which was unknown, destroyed one pier and badly damaged another pier and three Navy vessels. Three cranes also were destroyed and numerous tools and small buildings burned. Discovered late yesterday afternoon, the fire was finally checked about nine p. m. when the burning pier was dynamited near the shore line in order to check the spread of flames.

HOUSEWORK

We go to considerable expense to provide gymnasium in our schools and colleges. We recognize that exercise is a very valuable thing for our bodies.

House work is a fine kind of exercise. It makes use of almost all of the various motions taught in the gymnasium.

Scrubbing floors on hands and knees exercises arms, legs, shoulders and back. Cleaning windows takes care of a different set of muscles.

Sweeping with a broom makes use of many different muscles and joints.

Dusting furniture requires the use of almost all of the muscles of the body.

House work is just as good for boys and men as it is for girls and women.

Perhaps it would be a good idea to make a game out of it and let mother be the leader.

Plan To Equip Eight Divisions Of French Troops

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Rep. Ewing Thomson (D. Tex.) disclosed today that the United States plans to equip eight divisions of French troops—and that this is one urgent reason for "labor draft" legislation.

Thomson, a member of the house military affairs committee, made the disclosure in questioning Frederick C. Crawford, chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"If men like Gen. Marshall and Adm. King say, as they have said to this committee, we've got to equip eight divisions of French—that we have 400,000 soldiers in hospitals—what can we do? We've got to believe someone," Thomson declared.

No Comparison To Size Of Red Drive On Nazis

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Nothing that has happened in the past five years can bear comparison with the masses of men and weapons the Russians have thrown into the winner offensive now raging between the Carpathians and the Baltic Sea, Max Krull, military commentator of the Nazi DNB agency, said today.

Krull reported "The Russian onslaught, with innumerable infantry divisions and tank corps from the Vistula bridgeheads, is more than just another breakthrough attempt of the kind we have witnessed time and again with varying success since 1943."

Rambling Over Sport Trails

Durocher And Medwick Back After USO Tour, What About West Point Flunkers

By PAT RUBINSON

International News Service Sports Writer) NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Along the sports trails... or what's left of them... today we find... Leo Durocher, Dodger pilot, and Ducky Medwick, Giant slugger, back on Broadway... after a USO tour to Europe... both silent pending briefing by Army authorities...

But we'll be able to give you the first 10,000 words from Leo Manana, Coaches of Army's rival football teams perked up when they noted Dean Senabauer, Hank Goldberg and Dewitt Coulter listed among those who had flunked out of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

These three were sensational performers on Army's championship team... which reminds us that if all the potential All-America stars who had flunked out after their first semester at West Point were gathered together we'd have quite a regiment.

Must Be Reason It's easy to understand how a lad who hasn't majored in mathematics can flunk the stiff math courses at West Point and Annapolis... but what puzzles the regular Army officers is how it is possible for a graduate of an accredited state university can flunk on all subjects...

It would seem then that differential and integral calculus can do more to stop an Army team than many a strong opposing line. National AAU women's basketball champs... the Nashville Vultee Bomberettes... average six feet... and are led by Alline Banks... one of the Nation's best cagers... they are tackling the Saint Simon Stock Alpines here... and the Alpines are no midgets either... Albine ace is Jean Stevens... who is 6 ft. 2 in. tall... reminding us that jockeys usually like 'em that tall... but they sort of intimidate the rest of us.

Stall Rent Free Note that Morty Mahoney... dean of mutual directors... has been quoted as saying in Miami that bookies fostered mutuels because they refused big bets from the fact... big plungers still play the books even at three tracks because such bettors like to know just what odds they are getting... and because they don't want to bet against their own dough in the machines.

Small stable owners got a break from Dr. Ed Kilroe... president of Jamaica track... who is giving them stalls rent free during racing blackout... and we hear other tracks will follow suit.

Billy Evans... president of Southern Association... getting some support for Landis job... baseball men generally fear selection of any politician for the job... and most of them want no part of a national sports director.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE BY HAROLD GRAY

BY FRANK BECK

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

BOXING PROMOTERS usually let someone else do the actual fighting but in the case of one promoter of pugilistic dramas, this doesn't hold true because he served two years in New Guinea and other South Pacific spots and is now being readjusted at Deshon hospital annex. He's none other than Pte. Francis McGrail who promoted boxing in Town Hall, Scranton, before Adolf sic'd the Japs against Pearl Harbor. The pte. is well up in his thirties, of Irish ancestry, has hair bordering on what we claim is red, blue eyes and is chockful of humor. When ushered into the sports department yesterday by L. J. Nealon, U. S. Emergency Crop & Loan agency, Butler, he spotted him for a former hard coal miner the moment he opened his mouth. You know one doesn't lose a coal miner's brogue in two years time.

Just before A-dolf (and that is how some folk have told us the first name should be pronounced, said Sic'em to Hirohito, Francis McGrail was Promoter Francis McGrail. He ran his bouts, made some tall "dough" and could buy fat cigars and well, other niceties of life, too. But, after the Pearl Harbor stab, he switched prefixes. Promoter McGrail became Pte. McGrail. He was assigned to the combat engineers and he went into the South Pacific. Pte. McGrail didn't talk much about being readjusted here because of a leg injury suffered in New Guinea. When he winds up after the war is over, he wants to resume promoting boxing in Town Hall, Scranton.

Nealon came to bat with the information that the city has a former great of basketball. "You bet he was a great player," said Nealon speaking of Bill Comer, who he reports, is working with the Internal Revenue department here. He boosted Kane of Pittston as one of the game's finest years ago and added that Jack Fox, brother of the late Jimmie Dime, was also a floor game bulb.

Ruffles Johns writes that, in addition to working as a roofing inspector in Hollywood he is going to have a part in "A Masquerade in Mexico" will also be in "Captain Kidd" and "They Were Expensible." He says he had small parts in "A Sporting Chance" and "Gangs of the Waterfront". . . . James and not Luke is the correct first name of the science boxer Tommy Bell's V-string. . . . Sugar Robinson's speed and believe Sugar can beat anyone in the world excepting Joe Louis. . . . The right name of Jimmy Doyle is Jimmy Delaney.

Fair Or Foul

By LAWTON CARVER

International News Service Sports Editor) NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The draft boards no doubt will deny it, but it looks as though they are starting a drive on name athletes. First to be grabbed since War Mobilizer James Byrnes let go with his recent blast against sports characters out of uniform is Willie Pep, recognized in New York as world feather-weight champion. Pep was discharged from the Navy 11 months ago because of ear trouble after serving nine months.

Perhaps his Hartford, Conn., draft board has been reading the newspaper, which reveal that his ear trouble has in no way interfered with his fist-fighting. He has won 16 consecutive bouts since he was bounced out of bell-bottom trousers. He knocked out two of his opponents.

Pre-induction acceptance of a medical discharge, such as Pep, who was not recommended for enlistment, does not mean that he definitely is in the Army. He still must pass the final physical. But what does it mean? I wouldn't know and the draft boards aren't saying.

House League Game In the House basketball league at the "Y" tonight the Cardinals will play the Sparklers at 7 o'clock. It was announced.

Erysipelas is a common disease and found throughout the world.

When he, bearing a medical discharge, is recalled it looks like the forerunner of a rush toward others who have been deferred up to now.

Spind of us would like to know what President Roosevelt is talking about, too. He said yesterday that he did not object to baseball being played next season if it can operate without interfering with the war effort, then he added that he didn't think any perfectly healthy young man should play baseball in these times.

What is a perfectly healthy young man? Seems Strange Technically, none of the 4-Fs are perfectly healthy. That is the basis of their deferment. Yet, they are healthy enough to run the bases, hit the ball out of the park, field with speed and precision and do everything that perfectly healthy athletes can do.

It seems to me that the President has given baseball the signal to go ahead, but has done it in such a way that you can hardly tell whether it is the green light or a caution signal.

He just about echoed the sentiments of Byrnes in viewing our ball players.

Titans And Pitt Prep For Battle

Westminster Hopes To Up set Unbeaten Pitt Panthers At Farrell Saturday

(Special To The News) NEW WILMINGTON, Jan. 18.—Indications point to a packed Farrell high gym on Saturday night for the Pitt-Westminster basketball battle. The game will start at 8:11 o'clock it was announced. The Farrell gym will seat in the neighborhood of 3,000 fans.

Westminster will be gunning for its ninth win in 11 starts, and the Pitt Panthers will be out to make it five in a row, having defeated in the first four games—Carnegie Tech, Allegheny, Geneva and Penn State. Coach Grover Washbaugh is not under-estimating the prowess of the Panthers and will use his strongest available lineup.

The Titans fresh from their recent upset of Juniata, Bethany and Slippery Rock will be pepped up for the annual Pitt battle and the Blue and white clad Westminsterians are mighty anxious to add the Pitt team to the list of victims. Only two defeats, at the hands of Akron and Oklahoma A. & M., has marred the Titan season to date.

Mintz Arranging Fine Fight Card

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 18.—(INS)—Due to lack of big league fistic talent, Jake Mintz today announced he has returned to his "first love," the carding of four eight rounders for his next attraction at the Gardens next Monday night.

Mintz reported that he has scheduled Bee Bee Wright against Oscar Suggs, of New York, in the top eight; Phil Muscato, of Buffalo, against Gene Simmons, of Indianapolis, in the second; Ossie Harris against Johnny Finazzo, of New York, in the third; and Sammy Parotta against Mario Colon, also of New York, in the fourth.

Crisler Or Wilson May Land Big Job

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The choice for Western Conference commissioner to succeed the late Maj. John L. Griffith was reported today to be between H. O. "Fritz" Crisler, athletic director and head football coach at Michigan, and K. L. "Tug" Wilson, athletic director at Northwestern university.

Neither man is a candidate for the job, but conference officials have expressed an unwillingness to go outside the conference for a commissioner.

FOR STUDENTS AND THEIR YOUNGER BROTHERS $22.50 It is natural that younger boys should want their clothes to come from the same store where big brothers and dad buy. We give equal attention to boys of every age... and you will see a marked resemblance between the styles in every age bracket. In fact... they're identical... often even to fabric. The difference lies in price... and that is always completely fair as you know. $16.50 THE WINTER CO. "The Men's and Boys' Store" 130 East Long Ave.

MARKET TURNS TO WEAK SIDE

Most Of Gains In Market Wednesday Are Lost In Today's Trading

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The Stock Market turned weak this morning, losing most of the gains chalked up Wednesday.

First hour volume totaled 370,000 shares and maximum losses ran to 2 points.

Steels and motors were extremely soft. Chrysler dropped to 93 1/2, compared with a previous close of 95 1/2.

Both U.S. Steel and Bethlehem slumped more than a point.

Bids for rail issues were lowered on a fractional scale. N.Y. Central dipped a point but others in the group were steadier. Utilities, copper, and oils eased. Losses of a half or more were recorded in Douglas, Eastman Kodak, Gulf Oil, American Smelting and United Aircraft.

Veteran Smithies Still Have Thriving Shop In New Wilmington

From the outside it might be a garage, except for the hitching rail in front, but once inside you know it could be nothing but a blacksmith shop—the only one left in the New Wilmington locality. Across the half-wooden, half-earth floor was the stove, around which three men were seated on small barrels. Red ashes were in the brick forge and a horseshoe hung over the horn of the anvil.

The "smithies," G. G. Robinson and George Young, have been partners since 1905, when business went slipping along as lively as a well-shod horse. New Wilmington had four lively stables in those days, tractors had not yet replaced horses, and if the Amish people wanted to come into New Castle they used their horses instead of the bus, because there wasn't any bus.

Shoes Hand-Turned
Most of the shoes were hand-turned, then, which added to the work, and instead of a neat little hand blower to bring the flame up in the forge, the shop was equipped with huge bellows which took a little more effort.

"It was work," admitted Mr. Young, filling his pipe. "But then it still is. Since we're the only shop around here we get horses from clear over around Lowellville. What's more, horses aren't as well trained as they used to be, and they cause more trouble. We've shod them with their back legs tied, or when they've thrown themselves to the floor, or, once, when the horse was chloroformed.

Put Twitch on Them
That sounded slightly drastic, but when Mr. Robinson remarked that sometimes they had to put the twitch on them, the reporter who was visiting the shop was sure the smith meant some sort of curse. "No," laughed Mr. Young, taking down a thick, rounded stick with a hole at one end through which a rope was drawn and tied. It operated on the principle of taking the horse's attention from what was happening to his feet to the rope that was being twisted around his ear.

"Gives him something else to think about," the smith explained.

The "twitch" wasn't the only thing hanging on the wooden walls of the shop. There were rows of horseshoes hanging on racks along the wall or on the rafters overhead; there were calendars—one year's slipped on top of the year before; there was a "ladies' room, second floor" sign and a shelf with boxes of the square nails used in shoeing horses.

Many Articles

There were tongs and shovels and chains and hoes, all of which had either been made or repaired at the shop. There was even a modernistic magazine rack, slightly dusty, ranging from the ceiling.

"We do much more repair work than we used to," commented Mr. Young, picking up a hook which was still warm from the forge, and which had the initials "G.G.R." stamped into it. "Farmers used to scrap their stuff if it got worn or broken, but since the war started, they've been bringing it to us for repairs."

"Yep," agreed Mr. Robinson. "We mend everything here except broken hearts and make everything except cigarettes. We even make andirons."

But shoeing horses is still the main business of the shop, even though the days when a dozen horses and their owners would be gathered around the shop is definitely gone. The saddle horses from all over the country and outside it, horses which the Amish use on the roads to pull their wagons, and some farm horses come up to the little shop where the fire is always smoldering in the forge and the anvil never has much of a chance to get a comfortable coat of dust on it.

That vise over there came from England over a hundred years ago when my great grandfather came to America," Mr. Robinson said. He was a blacksmith, too, and so were my grandfather and my father. I've been in the business fifty-three years myself," he added proudly.

Two more men entered the shop and came up to the pot-bellied stove to watch the reporter's surprise when she learned that oxen have two shoes for each foot because they have a cloven hoof, and when she found out that a vicious-looking thing called a "cant" hook was what dentist's used to use to pull teeth.

"There's lots more to see around here. Come back in the spring when we're really busy," invited Mr. Robinson.

And the reporter probably will.

Urge Big Raise In Salaries For National Planners

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS)—The Joint Congressional committee on streamlining Congress promised full study of a report of the National Planning association, but doubt as to acceptance of a $25,000 salary for members of Congress was voiced.

The report prepared by Robert Heller, Cleveland management engineer, made 14 recommendations designed to place Congress in a stronger position.

An increase in salary from $10,000 to $25,000 a year was urged. Heller said the business group found that this salary would be in line with what people with equal responsibilities are paid in many lines of private endeavor.

"I don't think you could get a $25,000 salary though," said Sen. Byrd (D) Va., leading advocate of congressional economy.

"To do this you'd have to permit raise of other salaries and then inflation would start. You'd have to raise the President to at least $150,000 a year, increase salaries of cabinet officers and others."

The planning association report proposed to replace "horse and buggy machinery" of Congress with an up-to-date organization.

The proposals included reduction in the number of committees, abolition of the seniority rule, establishment of majority and minority policy committees and establishment of competent staffs to aid members.

Veterans Needed For New Field

Opening a new field to returning veterans, the United States Public Health department is recruiting laboratory technicians to serve in a "tropical disease" program which it plans to extend to the public health departments of every state, according to Ralph T. Jordan, veterans employment representative in New Castle, at the U.S. Employment Office.

The sermon on the mount.

"Thou hearest me always."—John 11:42.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 21 is Matthew 4:23-6:18, the memory verse being John 11:42. "Thou hearest me always.")

In our last lesson we read that Jesus went about teaching and healing the sick in mind and body. His fame spread through all Syria, and multitudes followed Him.

Our lesson today is the standards for living which Jesus set while He was among men on earth—in other words, the Sermon on the Mount. If we lived according to His rules so set down, we would be truly good people, those who bless the earth and do untold good to others. A life so lived would do more to convince people of the truths of Christianity than any other one thing.

"And seeing the multitudes, He went up into a mountain; and when He was set, His disciples came unto Him:

"And He opened His mouth and taught them, saying:—

"Blessed are the poor in spirit,"—thus began the Beatitudes. The first word is "Blessed" which means "Happy". Happy will the person be who is poor in spirit—not in our generally accepted meaning of that word. Not "yellow," not mean spirited, but poor in heart so that he feels the need of spiritual growth and strives to enrich his soul. Even the richest man in earthly wealth may feel this need for more spiritual riches and become an inheritor of the kingdom of heaven.

Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth. A meek person isn't boasting of his (or her) virtue; doesn't talk by the hour of what he has done and means to do. Doesn't insist that he is always in the right in a dispute, but realizes and acknowledges he may be wrong, too.

Likewise "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." It is easy to see that those who seek to know what is right and strive always to do it, will "be filled". Better than any earthly riches, this hunger and thirst bring peace and true happiness.

Likewise the merciful, those who do not condemn others, but are kind and understanding, and who treat their fellows, and all living things compassionately, surely will—or should—obtain mercy for themselves.

Peacemakers Called Blessed
Blessed are the peacemakers. They shall be called "sons of God". It may be right to fight in a just and righteous cause. After the battles comes the peace making. How the world needs just and righteous men and women to make peace that will last because no injustices are done. So in private lives, those who help to make and keep the peace are blessed.

Those who are persecuted and reviled because the world cannot understand the righteousness of their views or actions, shall also be blessed. "Theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Christ also interpreted the ancient Jewish laws in a new way. His law of love was that if you have an enemy, instead of hating him, you should love him, pray for him, and do good to him. Is this too much to ask of us? No it is not.

WHAT PRICE—One Pair of Eyes?

THOSE bright, sparkling eyes of childhood! Help them keep their sparkle—their clear, perfect vision. One school child in five has lost part of that sparkle because of defective vision. More than half the people over 35 have eyesight troubles. Why not conserve that precious eyesight by following these four common-sense rules!

1 Do all reading, studying, sewing, or game-playing close to a good light source, preferably a modern reading lamp.

2 Avoid glare from bare bulbs. Don't sit facing the light. Glare strains eyes.

3 Avoid shadows. Make sure you have good light directly on your book or work. Shadows strain eyes.

4 Have eyes examined regularly. If eyes are defective, vision can be greatly helped with proper glasses.

When the war is over we are all going to have Better Light for Better Sight. In the meantime, let's conserve both eyesight and light. Take care of your eyes, but don't waste light.
